

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

The Editor's Preface.

THE most valuable materials for national history have frequently to be sought for in sources far different from the works of the general historian, whose pages are more frequently devoted to the political than the social position of the people, whose history is the object of his labours. To obtain a glimpse of their actual state under the existing institutions of a particular period, we must examine them working out their system of jurisprudence in legal pleadings; we must see them engaged in their various professions and trades—in their pageants and sports,—and we must be acquainted with their manners and dress. It is almost in vain to expect in ordinary histories an accumulation of incidental facts bearing on all such points, although these are to be regarded in proportion as they have incorporated in them such disjointed facts, as a reference to the chronicles, judicial proceedings, familiar epistles, and fragmentary relics of past times will amply afford.

The records of the Burgh of Aberdeen present us with a greater combination of these than is generally to be found in similar sources; and their historical importance has long been acknowledged by those who have had access to them.

They reach back to a very remote period, and enable us to trace the effects wrought on society by the political and religious changes which occurred; while they are full of many minute incidents which serve to fill up a picture of the condition of our forefathers in all its parts.

These Records comprehend the proceedings of the Council of the Burgh, of the Baillie Court, and the Guild Court. From 1398, when the first volume commences, to 1745, being the period comprized in the selections to be printed for the Club, they extend to 61 folio volumes, containing on an average about 600 pages each. With the exception of volume third, containing the proceedings from 1414 to 1433, there is no blank in the series.

In "The Catalogue of the registeris and baillie court buikis of Abirdene presentlie extint, or hes bene during the memorie of man, thir thre scoir yeiris bygane, maid and collectit treulie, as thai ar, be Mr. Thomas Mollisvne, clerk of Abirdene, primo Septembris 1591,"<sup>1</sup> it is stated that there then existed "peces and partis of four ald imperfyt and informall buikis consumitt and eittin be mothes, for aldnes and antiquite euill to be red, yit to be keipit for a monument be resoun of the antiquite." The same scribe conjectures that there was "na register nor court buik of Abirdene extant, nor yit knawin that ony buik or register of the said court wes before the yeir of God ane thousand thre hundred and fourscoir yeiris. Befor this, scrowis on parchment containing sum courtis of the Burght of Abirdene writin in Latyne all, and for ilk yeir ane skrow: na mater of importance or weycht extant or registrat thairin, nother yit ony ordinance or statut sett dounn, onlie suittis and actionis, or processus for annuellis, euil to be red, be resoun of the antiquite of the wreit, and forme of the letter or charecter, weray schortlie and compendiouslie wretin, quhilk is not now vsit; and skairslie gif ony man can reid the samyn." None of these scrolls of parchment have come down to our times.

The selections now printed have been taken from the first twenty-seven volumes of these Records. The principle on which they were made, was to select and print entire those entries which bore reference to the history and manners of the period over which they extended. They are given precisely as they stand in the Registers, except in a very few cases where lists of the names of burgesses, and frequent repetitions of mere formalities, have been abridged.

To facilitate a reference extending over so wide a field, recourse was had to the Index to these Records, prepared by the late William Kennedy, Esq., Advocate, by the assistance of which a considerable part of the selections in the first part of the volume were made. A more rigid examination of the original Records induced the Editor to make additional selections from the earlier volumes, which will be found in the latter part of the present volume. A short notice, indicating the subject of each entry, has been prepared, and is prefixed to the volume under the title of Contents, and an Index of the principal names and places is added at the end.

As the Editor found it impossible to devise any system of classifying materials so various and discordant, which appeared at all satisfactory, he has given them in their chronological order, a plan which seemed less objectionable than any other.

In the succeeding volumes of Selections to be printed for the Club, will be given Extracts, commencing about the period at which the present volume terminates, from the Accounts kept by the Treasurer of the Burgh, and the Dean of Guild, which will be found most valuable illustrations of the other Records.

The first volume is very much occupied with municipal statutes regulating the prices of provisions of all kinds: great care was manifested that the quality of these should be of the proper standard; and certain qualified officials were annually elected to watch over this department, under the names of gustatores vini, gustatores cervisie, appreciatores carniorum, and the like.

The profits of merchants were regulated in a similar way:

Item, that na fleschewar mak [ ] nor by to sel agayne ony turbote, as said is, bot thai sal haue for the brekyng of a turbote quhillk is bocht within xii d. j d., and quhen it exceedis xii. d. ii d., quhill it cum to ii s., and swa furth for ilke schilling i d., and he sal haue nane vther eschetis, bot al sal be brokin to the biaris, vnder the payne forsaide.

Item, that na man tak on hand to by vitale mar na will suffice thar housis, to tap agayne at derth apon the commounys, and give ony nyctbour has vitale to sell, that thai tap it nocht in housis bot in the merkatt playneli apon the merkat dai, vnder the payne of viii s. unforgiffin. and eschete of sic gude, but fawour. [Extracts, p. 397.]

Many of the regulations in this volume and subsequently are directed against forestallers, who are "they quha pre-occupies and byes merchandice before it cum to the mercat, or to the stall or place quhair it suld be sauld, or the time of day statute and ordained thereto;" thus "Item, aliqua regrataria emat aliquod antequam veniat ad forum et crucem burgi et pulsationem campani solvet xii d.," a regrater being he "quha byis ony merchandice or vther thing, and takis vnleasumlie greater price for the samin afterward."<sup>2</sup>

It was unlawful for any merchant to pay a larger price than the statute one.

Item, that na man by woll skynnes derar than x d., schorlinges vi d., scaldynes iii d., the dusane of lentrinwar viii. d., the dusane of futfellis ii. s.; and quhasa dois in the contrar sall. euery tym that he trespasses, pay, but remissioun, vi s. viii d. to the commone werk and profite of this toun. [Ibid, p. 397.]

No one was allowed to pay more for wool in Buchan than 2s., except for that of lords and free tenants, for which last not more than 30d. was to be given. The wool of Mar and the Garioch was not to exceed in price 30d. Whoever paid more than these prices was to be fined 20s. for each offence, and lose his liberty within burgh for a year and day.

Occasionally a qualified permission is given to buy at any price, thus :—

Et memorandum quod quilibet est liber ad emenda. infra Marr pro quocunque precio pro quo voluit et ly Marr contin. a Monymusk et Kege et Forbes australiter dovne the water of Donne ad Abirden apon the su [syd] of that ilk watter.

And thir arr the sortis that arr outetane the Lord of Mar, Sir W. of Keth, the Bischope of A[berden], the Abbot of Der, the Lord the Hay, Malcolm Marchell, S. Jon of Navy, Andr. of Keth pater, Sir Henry Preston, Thom. Brisbane, Alexr. Fraser of Percok.

And qwa sua brekis this ordenance, he sal pay xl s. als oft tymes as he brekis it, how mekyll or how lytil that euer he buyis within a sek of woll; and gif any excedis byand mar than a sett. of woll agayn this ordenance, how oftymys he dois he sall pay iiii [s.] [Ibid., p. 382.]

These regulations would seem to indicate that the supply of provisions and raw material had been very limited, and that it was therefore necessary to repress the temptation which might arise of buying up goods and retailing them at an inordinate profit.

It was also unlawful for a burgess to procure lordship against his brother burgess, that is, to procure the influence of these "extraneans" in their quarrells and causes. Thus it was statuted,

*Quod quicunque vicinus ville vel inhabitans villam qui procurat dominos contra vicinum suum, vel contra aliquem in habitantem villam, soluet qualibet vice qua sic fecerit, quadraginta solidos sine remissione, pro tribus vicibus Et si quarta vice fecerit, priuabitur a libertate sua penitus et omnino. Et si non habeat unde soluet dictam penam incarcerationabitur per tres dies et tres noctes et postea abuirabit villam pro anno et die. [Ibid., p. 387.]*

And again,

That nane haff lord na lordschip othir na the king, the duke [of Albany], and the erll of Marr. bot his aldirman and his baillies, under the said payne. (P. 389.)

In these turbulent times it became usual for the lesser barons, and also for the burghs, to become the adherents of some powerful nobleman, who, on the other hand, undertook the defence and maintenance of his allies. The burgh of Aberdeen accordingly in 1462 granted their band of manrent to the Earl of Huntly, which narrates that the earl had become bound to maintain and keep the town in their freedoms and infestments, therefore the burgh undertook to be Lele and trew to the forsaid lorde erle, in counsaile gif he askis us efter oure wittis and knaulage, and kepe his counsaile gif he chargis us, and atour quhen it sall pleise the forsaid lorde to cum to oure saide burgh with few persons or many, and to remain or pas quhen him likis, we sal at all oure gudely powere conserue and kepe him and his company within oure saide burgh, to tak sic part with him in his defens as we wald do for the defens of oure awyn persons, kepand our allegeance til oure souerane lorde the king, and the fredomes of oure said burgh. Thir oure letteres til enduir for al the termes of ten yeres fra the day and date of ye making of thaim. In witnes of the quhilk thing, oure secrete sele to thir oure lettes is affixt, at oure burgh of Aberdene forsaid. the xxth day of Januare, the yere of God j<sup>m</sup> cccc sexte and twa. [Ibid., p. 22.]

An injury inflicted on the "man" of a nobleman was resented as much as if he himself had been the injured party. Of this a curious instance occurs in the case between William of Cadiou and Robert of Cullace.

The quhilk Mononnday, the courte affermyt, the said Will. comperit, and ane noble and mychte lord the Erle of Avandale and the Constable, on the behalf of the said Robert, comperit and askit the lawcht as tha did on the day before. And than Sir Alexr. of Irwyne, knyght, forspekar to the said Williame, profferit that the said Williame suld acquite him be himself and otheris diuers persones, that he wist nocht that the said Robert was man to the said Erle, na to the said Constable. na that he come to this town in thair company. And attour for the defaute that the said Will. had made to the saidis lordis Erle and Constable, he put hym in thair grace, upon the quhilks the said lord Erle and Constable, sen the thing was greue, tuk to be avisit upon his profferis, and with consent of partis it was differrit be the saidis lordis Erle and Counstable, upon four dayes warnying, the said Wylliam to comper than befor the alderman and ballzeis in like maner as he comperit this Mononnday, hawand the force and effecte that day as this day but fraude or gile. And at this suld be fulfillit be the said Williame and the partis skathlace in the mentyme. Sir Alexr. of Irwyne is cummyn a borch to the alderman and ballzeis. And at the saidis Williame and Joh. of Cadiou, his cosyne, sal be skathles of the saidis lord Erle, and of the said Constable, and of the said Robert, and of thar pairtie, but fraude or gile, the said Lord Erle and Constable arr becummyn borowes to the saidis aldirmann and ballzeis.

JAMYS OF DOUGLAS OF AVANDALE.

—[Ibid., p. 395.]

It is frequently enjoined to burgesses that they should have their weapons in their booths ready—

The said day, it was statut be the prouost, balzeis, and counsaile, that ale freman of this burgh be weile bodyn and abilzet for weir in thair personis, ilkan efter thair degre and faculte, ilkan hawand ane speir, ane bow, and ane targe, with vthir defensabile wapins, the speir contening v eln and d., to remain within the towne for the resisting of thar ald inemeis of Ingland : and ilkan freman that falzeis and remayn nocht personaly within this burghe, sale pay viij s. ilkan day vnforgevin, to furnis vther personis. [Ibid., p. 87.]

They were ordered to

Ryss to the ryngyng of the comoun bell, and to biddyng of the officeris of the tovne; and giff ony soudane affray comys, that thai be redy under the said payne; and gif ony keip or persayvis ony schath aperand to the tovne, or ony at duells in it, that thai mak warnyng vnder the said payne. Als, qwatsumeuer has nocht his wapynnis redy, and beris thaim nocht, sal tyne viii s., withoute remissioun, and prisone quhill that viii s. be payit. [Ibid., p. 389.]

Such regulations were frequently too closely responded to, and frequent affrays and "perturbationes ville" took place. Their warlike habits appear even in the names of the time; thus, we find a tanner with the ominous name of "Johannes out with the Swerd;"
and they occasionally peep out in places where they should not have been looked for. Thus, in a case between William of Seton and William Cadiou, which was referred to an assize, after mutual assertions and denials in court,

Thairapon the said William avisit, come before the court and keist downe his hat, profferand him to fecht in the said querel; apoun the quhilk the said Alexr. Menzes askit ane testimonial of the court how that he manasit and prouokit him, sayand that it nedit nocht, na that he wald nocht fecht in the said querel, sen that it mycht be determyt be the law and the assise; the quhilk assise riply avisit, fand, and deliuerit that the said William of Setoune had strublit William of Cadiou apon forthocht felony, under law borowis; for the quhilk strubulance he was adiugit in amercia-ment of the court, and the said William of Cadiou quite of all strubulance of the said William of Setoune.

This may have been a remnant of the right of private battle formerly competent by our law for the decision of civil as well as criminal cases.<sup>1</sup>

It will be found on reference to the Extracts, that almost every case, whether criminal or civil, was decided by a jury, varying in numbers from five, to four times that number. Their verdict decided the truth of the averments brought forward by the parties, and then the judge applied the law to the fact so proved; but the

"adjustment of the issues" would not seem to have been so tedious a matter in these times as in our own day.

The system of "striking" or finding borghs, of which frequent mention occurs, is recognized in our oldest systems. This had several meanings, as in one view, it is "ane caution or souertie vsed in bying and selling, quhilk the sellar findis to the byar to make the gudis furth cumand as his awin propir gudis, and to warand the samen to him," for it is statute, that "na man sal bye ony gear except the seller thereof finde him ane lauchful pledge, quhilk is called borgh of hamhald."<sup>1</sup>

Again, the borgh might be that the party should be produced in court, in which case the production of his man before the judge was sufficient. "Sed si sit ejus plegius ad standum juri adversario suo tunc erit plegius suus totalit<sup>us</sup> usque ad finem placiti et satisfaciet pro ipso, tam erga curiam, quam erga partim."<sup>2</sup> Again within burgh, "Nullus emat aliquam rem nisi habeat legalem plegium, exceptis cibo potu aut pannis scissuratis ad induendum et hujusmodi minutis mercantiis."<sup>3</sup>

Many illustrations of the working of a system of laws now almost obsolete, will be found in these extracts.

There will also be found some very early specimens of the familiar language then used in letters, contracts, and judicial proceedings. Of these is a letter from the magistrates, in 1401, but wanting the address,

Reuerence and honour likit yhu to wit, that the lord of Keth arestit yhur wyn and yhur oxin, and for gud causis as he lete ws wit; and for yhur sakis we made him request that he suld frely delyuer thaim, for the quilk request he has delyuerit thaim frely at this tym, for we ar thai at wald at gud acord war betuex yhu and hym, and wil do our besynes to bryng it thar to at our power, at the quilk accord he sayis he wald be galdly and sal nocht leve in his defeute. Qwarfor, der lord, it is our consale, and we requir yhu. that for essy of the con-

God kepe yhur estate as we desir.

- In those times, the limits of the jurisdictions conferred on individuals and communities were jealously watched.

In 1436, we find the Baillies of Kintore asserting their rights, by repledging to their own jurisdiction a burgess on whom it was attempted to fasten a claim in Aberdeen;<sup>1</sup> and, in 1530, the Baillie of the Bishop of Aberdeen had to obtain the licence of the Baillies of Aberdeen before he could hang a thief convicted in the Bishop's court.<sup>2</sup>

These records present us with some curious particulars regarding the hospitalities practised by the burgh in former times towards the Scottish monarchs and their attendants. Beginning with the propine of 100 merks to James II in 1455, we have another to the welcome of the same monarch in 1448, of "tua tunnes of Gascoune wyne, sax lichtis of iii stane of wax, and xii haf pundis of scorchetiss, and falyheand tharof xii hale pundis." James IV. received a propine in 1492, and another in 1495. Again, in 1497, when this active monarch performed a pilgrimage to the shrine of St. Duthac, in Ross-shire, he passed through the town on his way thither, and again, on his return southwards. On these occasions he received a propine of wine and spicery. At the same time the Lord Huntly received a pipe of wine, and the Lord Oliphant a gallon of claret. The following ordinance which was passed at the time will show the preparations which were thought necessary on the occasion of the monarch's stay in the burgh:—

The said day, it was thoct expedient, statut, and ordanit, be the alderman, balzies, and con-

sale, for the plesour of our souerane lordis hienes, his lordis and nobles of consale, that all baxteris, brousteris, flesseris, fischearis, stabillaris, candillmakaris, cordonaris, tailseouris, and ale vtheris men of craftis within this burghe, be weil furnyst and bodyne in gud and sufficient stuf, ilkan according to thair craftis and operacions, to the furnysing of our souerane lordis hienes and his lordis, &c., for the space of xx dayis and forthir, also lang as his hienes makis residence within this burghe. In the first, all baxteris to haue bakin breid and flour reddy to baik; al broustaris to haue brovyne aile and grundin malt reddy to brew; al stabillaris to to haue sufficient stabillis, hek, manger, corn, foder, and ale vther stuf according thairto; ale flescheris to haue fresche flesche dailie and hourlie slane and to be sclane; ale fischearis to haue fische reddy, salt, poulderit, herde, and fresche quhen the wedder ansueris thairto; al candil makaris to haue candile reddy maide sufficient stuff; ale tailseouris, cordonaris, and skinneris, to haue werk maid, stuf reddy to mak, ilkane according to thair craft; al merchandis to haue wax, wine, spicery, and vther merchandice reddy, to the furnesing of our souerane lordis hienes; and that al elding sellaris bring thair elding dailie and hourlie to the mercat.

In 1501, occurred the marriage of the king, for attending which the minstrels of the town received £10 "to furnyss thame to the passage witht the alderman and utheris honorabil nyctbouris."<sup>1</sup> From another entry it would appear that they had been ornamented with a silver badge, having the town's arms engraved on it.<sup>2</sup>

A tax was levied for the passage of "the best and wortheast of the toun to the fest of oure soverane lordis marriage."<sup>3</sup>

In 1504, the king again received "sax par torchis, ane dusane of prekats, iii dusne of syis of walx, ane dusane lib. of scorcheatis, and alsmeikle wine as the master of the sellar plessis to tak till his hienes." He got a propine in 1507, and another in 1509.

In May, 1511, Margaret, the Queen of James, made a visit to the town. On this occasion it was resolved to receive her Majesty "als honorablie as ony burgh of Scotland, except Edinburgh, al-lanerlie, and to mak als larg expensis thereapone as the prouest and counsail diuis, for the honour of the towne and plesour of his gud grace" Two hundred pounds were to be given to her Majesty; and the following ordinances were passed for the cleansing and beautifying of the town.

Item, it was statut and ordanit, that all personis duelland uteucht the forgait in the baksteris, Aluss it was statut and ordanit, that na swyne being within this brught, young nor auld, be hauldin uteucht band of the forgait for ane siftene dais, this day being runnyne, under the pane of slauchter of the said swyne, escheting of thame, and banyssing of thame that aw the samyne, and als that all the tovn be devoyen of the swn croffis, under the samyn pyane, betuixt this and Thurs-day nixt to cum.

Alsua it was statut and ordanit, that all maner of persone or personis that bringis ony byrkis, holingis, gyras, herbis, or ony vthir grene flouris, haf common passage, and sal haue fre mony and redy siluer for the samyn. [P. 70.]

These notices of her Majesty's visit derive additional interest when taken in connection with the admirable description of the Queen's entry to Aberdeen on this occasion, given by our great national poet Dunbar, who seems to have been a spectator of this event. This was first printed in the recent edition of this "makars" poems, edited by Mr. David Laing, to whom Scottish literature owes so much, and as it is so intimately connected with the subject of these remarks, there is little apology due for here introducing it.

The Queenis Reception at Aberdein.

BLYTH ABERDENE, thow beriall of all tounis,
 The lamp of bewtie, bountie, and blythnes;
 Unto the heaven [ascendit] thy renown is,
 Off vertew, wisdom, and of worthines;
 He nottit is thy name of nobilnes,
 In to the Cumming of Oure Lustie Quein,
 The wall of welth, guid cheir, and mirrines:
 Be blyth, and blisfull, burgh of Aberdein.

And first Hir mett the burgess of the toun, Richelie arrayit as become thame to be,
 Of quhom they chesit four men of renoun,
 In gounes of velvot, young, abill, and lustie,
 To beir the pail of velvet cramase
 Abone Hir heid, as the custome hes bein;
 Gryt was the sound of the artellerie:
 Be blyth, and blisfull, burgh of Aberdein.

 Thairfoir, sa lang as QUEIN thow beiris Croun,
 Be thankfull to this burgh of Aberdein.

In 1526, James V. paid his first visit to the town when it was resolved to give him an "honest propyne," which consisted of "sax potionis of wyne, or the awal of the samyn, in stark mychty wyne and small wynniss ; item, sax stane of wax, 34 lib. of scorcheatis, tua sed mettis, foure chaldyr of collis." The Lords of Council also got a propine : "Imprimis, the justice ane potioun of wyne, the lord chancellor ane potioun of wyne, my lord of Angus ane potioun of wyne."<sup>1</sup>

Every craft was ordered to assist in decoring the town ; and moreover,

The haill townn beand gaderit and conuenit within the tolbuith for the maist part, the prouest exponit and schew to thame quhow that the kingis grace with his lordis of counsaill ar to cum incontinent to this guid townn, to the haldin of ane justice ayre. Quhairfor he chargit all and sundry the nyctbours of the said guid townn, that nayne of tham sett thair luggenis and husis to na maner of man quhill the kingis suriouris cum, that the townn may knaw quhat lordis and men of guid cumis with him, and thairefter the luggenis and innis ma be sett to tham, be the awiss of the prouest and consall, to ilk man efter his awin estat. And alsuay chargit the stabillaris that thai graitht thair stabillis in the honestest fasion thai can ; and that thai haue corne and fodder to sell to furniss the said stabillis sa mony horss as thai will ressaue.

In 1541 the queen of James V. visited the town, when commissioners were appointed to "devyse a certain sowme of money, for the decoring and preparing of this good toune again the quenis coming, and to propine her eftir thair power, as the ald wss hes bene within the burght at the first cuming of princis."

In 1543 the earl of Arran, governor of the realm, received a propine, and the town, on being asked by the comptrollar to the queen if they would support the governor by whom he had been sent, and "gif thai vald fortify and menteyne his authorite aganis certane conspiratouris," resolved to "serf him at thair wtter power at all tym."<sup>1</sup>

In 1556, it was resolved to give a propine to the Queen at the next Justice ayr, consisting of wine and spicery. To Monsieur D'Oysel wine and sweetmeats, and to the Justice Clerk a puncheon of wine.<sup>2</sup>

In 1562, Queen Mary made her first entry to the town, when Thomas Menzies explained to the inhabitants that "it is nocht on-knawin to thame of her grace honorabill resauing at her first entry, and prencely propynis giffin to hir grace in Edinburght and Dundee, and vther townis that her grace hes vessit, quha all in ane voce dewisit and ordanit the sowme of twa thousand merkis, to be vpliftit for the preparatioun and decoratioun of the toun, and to be propynit to her grace as vise hes beene in tymes bypast to be done to kingis and princes of this realme at their first entre."<sup>3</sup>

Another notice shows that artillery had been fired at her entry, for we find the council agreeing to recompense Thomas Nicolsoune "for the skayth sustenit be him in braking of certane chalmeris of his arteilzerie, quhilkis the toun borrowit fra him, and wes vsit, and schot with pulder in volie at the quenis first entre to this burght,"<sup>4</sup> and the ensign, which had been prepared for the occasion, was in existence in 1616, when it is said to be "all lacerat and revin, and nocht seiming to be borne."<sup>5</sup>

The hospitality of the town was not confined however to such exalted personages. In 1508, the Bishop of Aberdeen [William Elphinstone] received the following propyne:

The saide day, the prouest, ballieis, and counsale, ordanit and diuisit ane propyn in wyne, wax, and spice, to my lord of Abirdene, as eftir follouis: In the first, tua puntionis of wyne cost nyne lib. and iiii s. to cary thame to my lordis place; item, iiii pece wax, price of the stane xviii s., maid in torchis and pricatis, for the makin of thame, lii s., for the treis makyn and savin, xviii d., for tua reuchteris to be the treis, xx d., for wekis, xviii d.; item, ii dusane of scorcheatis, price xlviii s.,  $\frac{1}{2}$  galloune of Maluasy, price iiii s. viii d., ane galone of claret, v s. iiii d., ane  $\frac{1}{2}$  galloune of quhit wyne, price ii. s., to be pait of the rediast gudis of the toun. Some of the haille, xvi lib. iiii s. viii d.

In 1522, they ordered "xii prekatts of wax to be gevin my lord of Abirden [Bishop Gavin Dunbar] now at his cuming, together with xii bostis of skorcheatis, becaus there is na guyd wynniss now to send to his lordschip."

In 1528, the celebrated historian, Hector Boyis was the object of their hospitality, when they Consentit to propin Maister Hector Boyis to his maister ack in theologie, with ane townn of wyne, gif he will bid quhill new wynniss cum hayme, or thane with twenty lib. Scottis, to help to by him bonatis, quhilk of thame he thinkis maist expedient, at his awin plesour. And the said counsail to convein this day efter nowne, in the prowest innis, to se and devise quhar this mony salbe estast gottin.

It will have been remarked that Dunbar's poem describes a mystery or pageant which was performed at the entry of the queen of James IV. to the burgh. Such performances appear to have been favourite amusements in Aberdeen, and frequent entries regarding the regulations to be observed by the performers of them, occur in these extracts.

The first notice is in 1440, when the Abbot of Bon-accord, or, as he is elsewhere termed, the Abbot out of Reason, known in England as the Abbot of Unreason, and in France as the Abbe de Liesse, received the admission dues of a burgess to defray his expenses in the play of the Haly blude, which was performed at the Windmylhill.<sup>1</sup>

In 1479, the council and brethren of guild agreed "to mak the expensis and costis of the comon gude apon the arayment and uthris necessaris of the play to be plait in the fest of Corpvs Cristi nixt to cum."<sup>2</sup>

The Abbot and Prior of Bonaccord seem to have been conjoined in conducting these exhibitions, which, on some occasions, were performed too much in their character of "Abbatis out of Resoun." In 1445, it was ordained "by the council and mony othir of the gilde, for letting and stanching of diuerse enormyteis done in tyme bygane be the abbotis of this burght, callit of Bone accorde, that, in time to cum, thai will giue na feis to na sic abbotis."

Item, it is sene speidful to thame that for the instant yher thai will have na sic abbot; but thai will that the alderman for the tyme, and a balyhe quhom that he will tak til him, sall supplie that faute. P. 14.

In 1496, we find the abbot and prior elected, and receiving their usual fee "for the honour, consolacioun, and plesour of this burghe, lik as hes bene vsit in tymes of thar worthie and honourable progenitouris,"

In 1531, a citizen was elected to the office, and offered some objections to his election, on which the provost produced the king's letters, charging the inhabitants that none of them should refuse any office of honour to which they might be elected by the community,

And inlikwiss how the prouest and counsall had chosen Alexr. Gray and Alexander Knollis to be lords of Bonacord for this instant year, quhilke has been an office of honor this tymes bygane, and inquirt at the communitie gif they thocht expedient that gin ony of the saids parteis refuset the said office, that our soureigns lords lettres suld be execut on thame in the charpest maner, quhilke the said counsall and communitie thocht expedient to be done. [P. 140.]

Notwithstanding of the honour attached to the office, it did not always meet with respect ; for, in 1542, we find Alexander Kayn's wife accused

For the hawy strublens and vile mispersoning of Alex. Gray and Daud Kintoir, lordis of Bonacord, and thair company present with thame for the tyme, sayand common beggaris and skafferis, thair meltyd wes bot small for all thair cuttit out hoyus, with mony oder inurious vordis, unleful to be expremitt, quhilke the sayd Alex. denyit; and thairefter it was funden be the haill counsale, present for the tyme, that the said Alexrs wyff hed hevily strubled and mispersonit the saydis Alexr. and Daud, and the remanent of thair company for the tyme, in maner abown wrytin, quharfor he wes convict and put in amerciament of court, to forbeir in tyme cumming, and amend as law will, and that wes geivin for dome, and the amendis tharof continuit to be modifyit eftirwart be the counsale. [P. 180.]

From a petition presented to the council by the lordis of Bonaccord in 1539, we acquire some idea of the nature of the office at that time.

Quharfor we exhort your M[ ] that we hef the auld lowable vse, lang vait and kepitt within this guid tovne, now in our tyme, lyk as it hes bene in our predecessoris tymes: that is to say, all the yong able men within this guid towne to conwey ws euery Sunday and haly-day, and wther neidfull tymes, aboulzeit as your M[ ] hes deuist, and agit men to meit ws at the crabstane or kirkyard; and thai that compeiris nocht, that we may poynd thame conforme to the auld vse, or ellis mony of thame will nocht obey, &c. [P. 160.]

The attendants of these lords of the greenwood were to have "thair arrayment made in grene and yallow, bowis, arrowis, brass, and all uther convenient thingis according thairto, to pass with Robyne Huyd and Litile Johne, all tymes convenient tharto, quhen thai be requirit."

They seem to have outlived the taste for such exhibitions; for, in 1552, we are told that "the lordis of Bonnacord, in tymes by-gane, hase maid our mony grit sumptuous and superfleous banketing, induring the tyme of thair regnn, and speciallie in May, quhilkeis wes thocht nothir profitabill nor godlie, and did hurt to sundry young men that were elekit in the said office, becaus the last elekit did aiye pretent to surmount thair predecessouris in thair ryteous and sumpteous banketings, and the cause, principal, and good institution thairof, quhilk wes in halding of the gud toun in glaidnes and blythtnes, with dances, farsiiis, playis, and gamis, in tymes convenient, neglectit and abusit. It was therefore ordained that there should only be three honest and sober bankets, upon the Senze day, the first Sunday of May, and on Tuesday after Pashe."<sup>1</sup>

In this year these officials got a larger allowance than usual, "and that be ressource of cummyng of the quenis grace, my lord governor, and the maist of the lordis and grit men of this realme presently to the toun."<sup>2</sup>

All these games were put an end to by act of the legislature in 1555.

Some of the citizens seem to have been unwilling to drop their amusements, for in 1562, we find John Kelo, helman, accused of endeavouring to convene the community "to pass to the wood to bring in symmer upoun the first Sounday of Maii, contravinand the actis and statutis of the quenis grace and lordis of consell, epeirandlie to raise tumult, and ingener discord betwix the craftis-men and the fre burgessis of gild." The "auld vse" was brought forward as an excuse, and one of the citizens "denyit ony wrang done be him thairintill." They were, however fined, and ordained to compeir "vpoun Sounday nixt cumis, within the parochie kirk, and thair, immediatlíe aftir the preaching, in presens of the congregatioun, grant thair said offenses as done through ignorance, and vpoun thair kneis, ask God and the congregatioun forgifness."<sup>3</sup>

Besides these games and plays, there were other pageants exhibited, which more closely resemble that described by Dunbar.

These consisted of processions of the craftsmen on certain festival days, with banners and pageants, and of masques supporting the character of some scriptural or classical personage or event. The earliest notice of a dramatical exhibition by the craftsmen is at Candlemas in 1442.<sup>1</sup> In 1532, will be found an ordinance regulating the order of the craftsmen in the procession.<sup>2</sup> On this occasion

Of a character somewhat akin to the abbot of unreason was the boy bishop, a character well known both in England and France. The custom of electing a boy bishop, begun probably at monasteries for the amusement of the younger inmates, became common at universities and schools. The election of the boy bishop appears generally to have been on St. Nicholas day, from which "till Innocent's daie at night (it lasted no longer at the first) the episcopus puerorum was to bear the name and hold up the estate of a bishop answerably, habited with a crosier or pastoral staff in his hand, and a miter upon his head; and such an one too some had, as was (saith one) verie much richer than those of bishops indeed."<sup>3</sup>

It appears from the Register, that, on St. Nicholas day, the master of the Grammar School, attended by the bishop, received certain dues from those whom they visited.

The said day, the haill consell, present for the tyme, all in ane voce, ordanit that the maister of thair grammar scuyll sell haf iiij s. Scottis, of the sobirest persoun that resauis him and the bischop at Sanct Nicholace day till his vage, at the leyst, and euere vder honest men to gif him at thair plasour; and gif ony honest man of ony reputatioun, oder craftismen or vder, haldis furth the bischop and giffis hym nocht entres, he sell pay iiij s. to the maister, and viij s. to the baillies onforgewin for thair wnlaw, and ordanis the officiaris to pound and distrenze for the samin; and that because it ves considerit be thaim that he hes na vder fee to leif on, lyk as his predecessouris hed afor him, and vder maisteris of vder scuiles.

And als that euery honest man, freman within the said burgh, baith merchandis and craftismen ressaue him and the bischop at Sanct Nicholace mess within thair houssis, conforme to the auld lovabill vse of the said burgh, and gif him thair wagis of the auld maner, efferand to thair estatis, as tha think expedient. And gif ony honest man, merchand or craftisman, that ma guidly gif his wagis, ressaue him nocht and the bischop at the same tyme, that he sall com- plane on the dissobeyaris to the bailzeis that hapnis to be in office for the tyme, and tha to caus him to haue his duyte of thame, be the avise of the consale, conforme to the auld vse of this said burgh.

Connected with these exhibitions the minstrels of the town may be mentioned regarding whom frequent entries also occur.

In 1522 it was

Statut and ordanit be the baillies and counsell, present for the tyme, that quhatsomever nichtbour disobeyit the command menstrallis in the gevin of them thair meit and wagis, as thar fee to thame, efter the forme of the auld lowable was of this burch, that thai suld pay to the bailleis unlaw viii sh. unforgevin, and tua shillings to the said menstrallis for thair dais cost; and gif ther be ony puyr folkis at ar not abill till gif thame meit, that thai gif them ii d. to thair fee and costis. [P. 106.]

In 1542 they were hired for their good service "to be done be thaim, as ws wes be the menstrailis afor thaim, thair predecessouris, at ewin and morne, and vder tymes neydfull concerning the toune, for all the days of thair lyf, and sell haif thair daily vaigis and meyt of the nychtbouris of this gud towne circularlie, conforme to the auld lovabill vse and consuetud of this nobill burght obseruyt in tymmis bygane."<sup>1</sup> making an anniversarie bishop among the choristers. 4to, Lond., 1649. Quoted in Dr. Jamieson's Scottish Dict. Supp. voce Abbot of Vnressoun.]

This mode of sustaining their officials was not confined to the minstrels, for we find that Sir Alexander Gray, chaplain of St. Crispin's and Crispinian's altar, had a right to receive, as part of his fee, diet during the week from seven of the "best and wortheast" of the Cordwainers. As might have been expected, he does not appear to have been well received on all occasions; for soon after their mutual agreement had been made, he complained that his employers had failed in the performance of their engagement, and that he wanted his "fee and pairt of his dietis in the oulk," on which the craft was ordered to fulfil their engagement, and to "sustene their said cheplane honestlie."

The penance inflicted on offenders, previous to the Reformation, was attended with some curious circumstances: thus, in 1539, Margaret Porter, who was convicted for the strublens and mispersonyng of Jonat Chesame, in calling of hir "commond vyld freris hvyr that scho wes, that hes ane pek of lyis betuix the shoulderis. I sell leid the to the place for the freir swervyt the, quhar you tint the pendace of thi belt in the hie publict gett." For which

Thai ordanit that the said Margaret cum on Sunday nixt, within Sanct Nicolace hie kirk in tyme of hiemes, cled in lynning claythis, with ane torche byrmand in hir hand, of thre pound of wax, bair lyg, and thair, afor the powpytt, and the provest and gude men of this toune, reuoke and agane say the forsaid vordis, and vtheris said be her of the sayd Jonat, and confess thame verray false and vntrew, and sayd bot of malice and in ire; and to syt downe on hir kneys as said is, and ask the said Jonat forgyffance, and request the gud men of the towne to caus the said Jonat to forgyf hir; and gif euer scho dois the maik in tyme cumyng, and beis convickt thairfor, to pay x lib., vnforgyffin, to Sanct Nicholace vark, and als to fynd cautioun for the fulfilling of the said mendis or scho duparte of the tolbuith. [P. 160.]

Again, in 1544, Symson Terwes and Ammorous Tailzour were convicted for the "cuming to Sanderis Jaffray's house on Sanct Nicolace day at evin, at last was, vnder silence of nyght, at xij houris of the nyght, or thairby, and seiking of the said Alexander for his grit skaith, with ane aix and stanis, and casting of stanis at the said Alexanderis house in grit nummer, and bluid drawin of the said Alexanderis wif in grit quantite." The verdict of the assise was

Ordanis the said Symsonis Terwes and Ammorouse Tailzours cragis to be put instantlie in the gowife, and incontinent thairefter tane out agane, and thane to cum to the kirk and pass afor the processiou, sark alane, afor the hie mess, with ane candill of ane pund of wax in thair handis, and efter the said processiou to offer the said tua candillis to Sanct Nicholace wark, and ask the said Alexander and his vif forgiffnes, and beseik the bailzies and men of guid of the toвне to solist thame to forgif thame, and als to fynd cautoun one Sondag, or thal be takin out of the tolbuith, for the townis vnlawis. [P. 212.]

After the Reformation, the penance enjoined in place of the above proceedings was not so rigorous; the defaulter was generally required

To cum vpoun Sondag nixt cumis to Sanct Nicolace kirk, and ther, in presens of God and his holy congregatioun, ask the said Elspet forgiffnes, and to revoik the injurious wordis said be him as fals and vntrew, and to sett cautoun, that gif ewer he beis fundyn in sic offens in tym cuming, to be baneist furth of this guid toun. [P. 331.]

Many contributions of salmon, hides, and money, towards the erection and fitting up of the Quire of St. Nicholas church will be found in the Records, and many fines exacted from offenders were specially appropriated to "St. Nicholace wark."

The attachment of the inhabitants to the Roman Catholic system would seem to have been warm, and some entries would indicate their jealousy of any slight being shown to their saint or to the church dedicated to him. In 1530, "Johne Andersoun was convickit in ane lacht of vi schillingis iiij d. to be doublit, becaus he was found in the vedding kirk dur, with his bonat on his heid, quhilk was hallowit place and kirk, efter the decernyng of the bailzeis and the haile courte."<sup>1</sup>

In 1533, the tacksmen of waters are ordered to pay at the "Natiuite of our Lord, callit Zowill, the lithis of wax, to the honour of God, our Lady, and thair patrour Sanct Nicholace, con-

forme to their auld vse and consuetud." <sup>1</sup> Again, in 1546, "all the inhabitantis are enjoined to come at Pasche to the vicar to pay their duty, conforme to the auld louabill vse of this guid toun." <sup>2</sup>

There are large contributions made occasionally for the ornaments and vestments used by their chaplains, and many circumstances indicate their attachment to the existing system.

It would appear, indeed, from the king's letters in 1525, that the Reformed opinions had been insinuating themselves in some parts of the diocese, as that document narrates :

Forsamekill as it is humelie meynit and schewin to ws be ane reuerend fader in God, and our traist consalour, Gawyne bischop of Aberdene, that quhare syndry strangearis and otheris within his diocesey of Aberdene, has bukis of that heretik Luthyr, and favoris his arrorys and fals opinionys incontinour our act of Parliament laitlie maid in our last Parliament : oure will is heirfor, and we charge you straitlie, and commandis that incontinent thir our lettres seyne, ye publishe the saide act at all places neydfull, and tak inquisitione gyf ony persons be fundin within the sayde diocesey of Aberdene that hes sic bukys, or fauoris sic arorys of the sayd Luthyr ; and that ye confisk thair gudis and imbryng the samyn to our vse and profit, efter the forme of the said act, as ye will ansuer tharapoun. [P. 110.]

In 1543, at the request of the governor Arran, who at that time was inclined to the reformed opinions, and had two friars to preach to his own household, the council agreed "to gif the religiouse men, Frer Iohnne Roger, and to Frer Waltir Thomsoun, his marrow, to their honest sustentacioun daylie, induring thair will, thre s., with ane honest chalmer, and that for their leill and trew lawtaful seruice, to be done in preching and teching of the trew vord of God, and thair daylie prearis for the estait of the lord governouris grace, the commont weill of this realme and of this guid toune." <sup>3</sup>

In 1544 we find seven of the citizens convicted for having committed some injury on the black friars ; and, in the same year, the lieutenant [Earl of Huntly] required that justice might be done on two of the inhabitants, who were found guilty of "hinging of the image of St. Francis."

These things may indicate a change of feeling on the part of some of the inhabitants, but the general tenour of the entries would indicate that the attachment to the old system continued unabated.

The Reformation, however, notwithstanding of this apparent loyalty to the Romish Church, met with but little opposition on the part of the inhabitants generally. The first notice of it in Aberdeen occurs on 4th January, 1559, when the baillies explained that certain strangers and some of the townsmen "hes enterit to the blakfreris and quhyt freiris of this toun and spulzeit thair placis, and takin away the gere and gudis of the samen, with the tymmar wark and insicht, togidder with the leid of the kirkis, and now ar enterit apoun the ruiffis of the kirkis and biggingis, and takand away the sklayttis, tymmer, and stanis thair-of, applyand the samen to thair awin particular uses." The baillies therefore requested to know whether the town thought it expedient to preserve these for "the commond weill of the toune, and specially for the furthsettin of Goddis glory, and his trew word and prechours tharof; and that the toune may be the moir habill to concur and assist for the defence of the libertie of the realme, expelling of strangeris, and suppressing of ydolatrie." The assembled townsmen, with one exception, authorized the treasurer of the burgh to intromit with the friars places and property, for the purposes above specified.<sup>1</sup>

In a few days, the treasurer explained, that he could not watch so closely as was requisite for the preservation of the friar's property, "quhairthrow thair wald inlayk mekill thair of without diligent attendance war takin thairto," and four persons were elected to "awayt on the doun taking and keping of the samen." These persons were also ordered to "resayf in thair keeping the chalices, silver wark, and ornaments of thair parochie kirk, quhill the toune consultit quhat were expedient to be done thairwitht."

On the 12th of January, the provost, Thomas Menzies,<sup>1</sup> who had been absent from the previous meetings, when these proceedings were sanctioned, protested against them,

First, in respect that the begynning of the said distructioun and dissipatioun of the saidis places wes done be certan particular personis, sum extranears and sum dwelling within the toune, quharof the haill communitie wes nocht participant, bot for the maist part war innocent and fre of the said cryme; and gyff the baillies and toune wald continew and compleit the distructioun begun by wthers, and employ the residew of the saidis places in the towniss usis, the haill toun vald be reput art and part, and participant of the said crym, and stand wnder the accusatioun of the autorite thairfor, to the gryt hurt, damage, and detriment of this burght, and the puir innocent burgessis thairfor; secundlie, the sayds prechers war tollerat be permissioun of the autorite, quhar and quhow thai plesit, quhill the tent day of Januar instant, be ane contract and appunctment maid betuix the quenis grace and the principalis of the congregatioun, eftir the said tent day is dissoluit and expyrit, and that the toune aucht nocht to mak expenssis on the sustentatioun of precheors, bot the bischop aucht to mak the same, and find us sufficient precheors quha resauis his duety thairfor, and sua to employ the townis commound gude in sic waiss is contrar the commound weill of the toune, and aucht nocht to be allowit to the auditors of the townis compts; thairfor the said Thomas Menzes, prowest, for himself and his adherentis, dissentit to all distructioun and dissipatioun of the said kirks and places, and applying of the same or ony part thairfor in the uses of the toune, and siclik of employing or bestowing of the townis commound gude or ony part thairfor on the saidis precheors; and he, as prowest, inhibit David Mar, thesaurar, to deliuer ony money or mak expenssis on the said precheors of the emoluments of the toune; and protestit solemply that he and his adherentis be nocht reput art, part, nor participant of the saidis crymes, nor incur danger, damage, nor skayth thairfor in tym cuming; upoun the quhilks he tuk act and instrument, in presens of the haill toune. [P. 318.]

This protest was adhered to by fifteen of the inhabitants, but nothing followed on it.

On the 11th March, 1559, it was resolved to support "The Congregation," and a tax of £400 was levied to defray the expense of forty men of war, who were to be sent to its assistance.

On the 16th June following, the chaplains of St. Nicholas Church presented a supplication to the Council, making mention

That quhair thai ar suirly aduertist, and is notowrly knawin, that certane personis in to the south partis of Scotland hes interpryssit at thair awin hands, without ony ordor or consent of the

Quhill bill being red, and the contents thairof understand and considerit, the haill counsell thocht expedient to transport the townis euidents furth of the kirk, and siclyk the grit occryst, chalices, siluer wark, and the maist coistly ornaments of the kirk, and to put the same in suir furance and keeping, and ane invitor to be maid thairupone, and to intromett, preserue, and keip the townis euidents, nemit and chesit Thomas Menzeis, prouest, David Mar, Maister Patrick Ruyfurd, and Walter Cullane, quhillis acceptit the said cuir and charge upoun thame. [P. 323.]

On the 6th January, 1561, the whole "silver wark, brasin wark, kaippis, and ornaments of their parochie kirk, were roupit, and the grytest sum offerit for the same wes ane hundred fortie tua pound, be Patrik Menzes for the keippis, xxi s. for ilk unce of silver, xvi s. for ilk stane of brass, extending in the haill to the sovme of £540 money of Scotland. The silver wark and ornaments consisted of the following articles :

Thus quietly did the Reformed Church take the place of its predecessor, in a place, too, where it has generally been supposed that the latter was very firmly seated.

Some interesting notices are preserved of the state of anarchy into which society had sunk in the early part of the sixteenth century.

From an entry on 2d October, 1525, we find that Alexander

Setoun of Meldrum, John Leslie of Wardes, William Leslie of Balquhain, Alexander Leslie of that Ilk, and thair accomplices, to the number of 80 spears or thereby, at the solicitation of John Collisone elder, who was an inhabitant and burgess, attacked the town under silence of night, and slew and wounded a considerable number of the citizens.<sup>1</sup>

Some proceedings followed on this camisado, but the dispute was settled by mutual arbiters; and in 1527, we find that Leslie of Balquhain and Leslie of Wardes, in presence of the Lord Justice and componitouris, became bound, for themselves and kin, that the town should not be molested by them in time coming.<sup>2</sup>

The causes of this outrage have hitherto not been well understood. From some of the ordinances and statutes enacted by the community at the time, it appears quite clear that the disputes took their rise from the interference of the country barons with the elections of the provost, and other municipal officers of the burgh, under the pretence of their having tacks of part of the town's freedom-lands, and also being honorary burgesses of the town. These statutes are contained in a volume (apparently the original manuscript) now in the General Register House at Edinburgh, (where it was recently discovered,) which, as appears from another entry, was called the town's "Buk of Statutis." In this volume alone many of the statutes passed by the community in the early part of the sixteenth century are to be found, as they were not engrossed in the Council Register. On 26th May, 1525,

The hail body of the guid toune, reuoluand and considerand quhow thair honorable progenitouris hes leuit as the kingis frie burgesses thir mony yeiris bygane, past memorie of man, quhen thai haf bene diuers and mony tymes inuadit boytht be lordis and gentilmen in the contreth, belewand to haf the superioretie of thame be way of electione of thair prowest, intending thairby to half subdeuit the hail communitie to thame and to thair houses, for quhair the heid is ontrune the memberis may nocht guidley resist; and quhen honourable to thir our dait our said progeni-

touris hes defendit this guid toune at liberalitie, frie of thraldome and of all thirleth, and now it is belewit and dreid that certane of the nichtbouris intendis at this tyme intysing of the provest to inbring gentilmen to landwart, quhilk hes bene our guid freindis, be senister informatiounes, to stop the nichbouris of the toune of thair electiounes, quhilk thai and thair forbiaris hes hald past memorie of man, as said is, becaus now thair the asedatiounes to set, thinking thairby to subdew this communitie to thame.<sup>1</sup>

Therefore it was provided that any person bringing in any "outlandis" man to stop the community in the free election of their provost, should lose his freedom of the burgh, and be unable to enjoy any office of honour among the burgesses thereafter, "Sua that we may leif all the kingis frie burgesses, ready to do him service at his grace command, and able to him sted and pleasour, as notable is knawin to every man of guid in the contretht."

And gif thair be any gentilman to landuart that ar burgesses of this guid toune, nor hes merit nocht within the sam, nor yet scottis, lottis, walkis, nor wardis within this guid toune, bot in tyme of cheising of thair provest thai sal haif no wot amangis thame, nor sal cum nocht within the tolbuith to stop our frie electioun, and gif thay do that, thai sal haif no place, and thair wottis sall stand na sted; and inlikwayis thai ordanit that the provest and ballies of this instant yeiris keep and defend thair tolbuith to the chesing of thair new provest, sua that na man cum thairin except induelleris of the said burght, nor haif wot nor entres amangis thame, in tyme cuming of thair said electiounes.

On the last day of September, the above statute was ratified and approved by the whole town, "na maner of persone, small nor gryt, in na degree opponand nor sayand in the contrar, except Iohne Collisone elder, and certan of his complices, to the number of [ ] quhilkis opponit and said that gentill men of landuart, sic as the lairdis of Drum, Wardes, Balquhyne, and Meldrum, suld have thair wottis."<sup>2</sup>

John Collison, having been thus thwarted in his projects, appears to have then concerted the disloyal attack on the burgh before noticed, thinking that, as he could not obtain the influence of those lairds, whose votes he wished to be received in the election of the provost, in a peaceable way, he might attain his end by rougher methods. The armed attack of the barons took place immediately after the day for the annual election of the provost and magistrates.

There had been for some time a feud between the town and the gentlemen of the name of Forbes in the county ; and on 10th July, 1521, we find statutes passed, in which it is said that the provost "exponit the grit damnag, skayth, crwell spoulze, and havy oppressioun, doune to him, to dyverse vtheris nychtbouris of the said burgh, and to the lands subdewit to thair commvnity, sic as destructioun of thair cornys, bayth one field, out of stakis, and barnis, breking and doune casting of thair cruiffis on the water of Dovne, spoulze of thair movabill guidis, and hereing of thair purtenentis be Johne Lord Forbes, and his complexis, with conuocatioun of the kingis legis, command in the said burght vnder trast, with ane noble and mychty lord, Alexander Erll of Huntlie, regent and luftenand to our souerane lord, of the northt of Scotland, the aucht day of Julii instant"<sup>1</sup> It was therefore ordained that every inhabitant should have ready his jak, splent, knapschaw, with axe, sword, spear, halbert, and other fencible weapons ; also, that no strangers should be admitted into the burgh without a rigid scrutiny. On the 12th of that month, the council resolved to complain to the king and ask redress of the

Gret oppressioun and cruell spoulze dovne to the said burght, fischingis and fredomis of the samyn, be Johne Lord Forbes and his complices, and to impetrat our souerane lordis lettres in the stratest forme, and vnder the heast and greatest paine that thar can be gottin . . . for lawbourris to be had of the saids Lordis Forbis, his kin and frendis, that the said burght, induellaris of the samyn, thar landis and gudis, salbe harmles and skathles of him and thame, and all that thai may latt, swa that the said nychtbouris may leif vnder the kingis pace, as merchandis and craftismen, to serue his grace within the realme, and to be exemptit fra ane nobill and michti lord Alexander Erll of Huntlie, regent and luftenand of the north, for causes, &c., and to that effect has ordanit ane mandet to be maid on the stratest forme, and has ordanit the statutis maid be thame the said

For the protection of the provost, the council

Appreivit the furth taking of thar artellery and powder be Gilbert Menzes his frendis and seruandis out of the cheppell of the hill, for the defens of his hous and gudis, and in defence of the said toune and thar fredomis in all tyme to cum.<sup>2</sup>

In 1522, James Forbes of Auchintoul, one of the clan, took and imprisoned a burgess of the town under silence of night, "he beand in the kingis seruice," for which violence complaints were made to the governor and lords of the realm.<sup>3</sup>

Lord Forbes, the head of the house, had been in the way of receiving from the town an yearly propyn of a tun of wyne, for his aid in protecting the salmon fishings on the Dee and Don. This, however, had been refused by the town, and, as it appears, for a very sufficient reason.

The said day, the haile tovne present for the tyme, all in ane voce disassentit that thar be ony pensioun in tyme cummand gevin to the Lord Forbess, or till ony vtheris for the keping of thair vatteris, becauss thai ar informit that thai that suld be keparis of the saym, are principale destroyars and feschars of thame in vndew tyme; protestand solemptlie, that gif ony sic pensioun be takin in tyme cuming, that it be haldin as reif and blak mail, and for remeide of law, quhen tyme and place may be fundin oportune. [P. 136.]

The answer of the town to a demand of his lordship's for this yearly pension is exceedingly graphic.

My lord, we commend us to your lordschip with al hartlie seruice quhom pleis wit, we haue seen ane writin send be your lordschip to our prouest, to be schawin to vs, with certan credence, be your lordschip seruand, Robert Lumisdail, quhilk writins and credence we haue considerit and avisit with. And quhar your lordschipe desiris ws to be kind to your lordschipe, as ye haue bene to ws in times bygane, my lord, we thank your lordschipe of kyndnesse bigane, and prayis your lordschipe to perseuere in tym cuming, for we sal euer desserue the samyn at your lordschipe, be Goddis grace, quhom haue your lordschipe in keiping, at your maist nobill hartis desire. Of Aberden, the xx day of May, [1530].

A few months after this, viz., in July, 1530, Alexander Forbes of Brux and his accomplices attacked the town. The citizens took arms and repelled the invaders, driving them to the Greyfriars place, where they were besieged for twenty-four hours. A servant of the laird of Brux and some of the citizens were killed, and a good many on both sides were wounded. The magistrates complained to the king for this outrage, and the Forbeses prompted a trial of the provost and several of the principal citizens before the Justiciary Court, as the alleged transgressors. From this charge, however, they were acquitted; and letters from the king were directed to the Sheriff of Aberdeen, requiring him to exact caution from most of the name of Forbes, that the town should be "skaithless at their hand in time cuming."<sup>1</sup>

In consequence of these "cruell slaughters, murthers, and oppressionis done to thame and to thair nichtbours be gentlemen of the cuntre" the former statutes, requiring the citizens to have their armour ready, and to provide for watching the town, were renewed. The ordinance on this latter head is as follows:

And, attour, it is statut and ordanit that thair be feit four personis: that is to say, tua to the stipill of the tolbutht, and tua to Santt Nicholace stepill, and thar to remayne eurilk day, sa lang as day licht lastis; and thair to spy quhat maner of [persons] on fut or on hors, to quhat nomer or quhat get thai cum to the toun. And the watch that beis in Santt Nicholass stepill to haue ane waif or tua within the samyn; and quhen he seis ony man cummand to the toun ridand, gif their be bot ane, gif bot a knell with the bell, and gif thair beis tua, tua knellis; and gif thair beis mair, ay as he can nomer them, sa mony men as he jugis, to gif sa mony knellis. And gif thai be sa mony that he cannot guydlie tell thaim, than to knell ay continuall; and quhowseone the watch in the tolbuitht heiris him knelland continuall and fast, than he sall jow the comond bell, ay and quhill the toun be in thair geir and harness. And the watch that beis in Sanct Nicholace stepill, to pyt on the waiffs that he hes, to the part of the toun he seis thame cumand to, sua that it may be knaw quhat port and art of the toun thai cum to.

As to arms, "every craftismen was to haif his wapin; that is to say, dense aix or halbert besyd him in his wirkin house, and quhan he passis to the gait, to turss the samin in his hand, or ellis sum fensabill wapin on his persoun, swa that thai be abill at all tymes to debate thame selff and thair nichtbouris, and this guid toun."<sup>1</sup>

A request made about this time by the king, on behalf of Patrick Forbes, for a lease of the lands of Ardlair, which had been mortified by Bishop Gavin Dunbar for upholding the bridge of Dee, and of which the magistrates were the managers, presents a curious picture of the unhappy state of the country, under the system of misgovernment which prevailed. The answer of the town to the king's request, which was refused, was undoubtedly dictated by the great evils which had arisen to the burgh from granting tacks to the country barons, and thus giving them a pretext for interfering with the internal polity of the burgh. It bore,

That the landis of Ardler war gewin for the ouphald and mantenyng of the said brig, quhilk is the commoun weill of the haill countre; and thai landis ar circuit betuixt the landis of the Forbessis and the Lesleyis, quhilkis of suld hes bene in greyt innimite,<sup>2</sup> and thai bayth desiris to hef entres of the saidis landis. Again in 1558 the Earl of Huntly made a similar request for a tack of these landis in favour of William Leslie, son and apparent heir of John Leslie of Balquhaine, in regard to which

The haill communite of the said brught being particularlie, euery man be himself, votit and inquyrit thairupoun, be the ordour of the suit rol, all maneir of persone refusit allanerlie to gif the said William Leslie ony tytill, tak, tolleranss, or intres to the saidis landis ; bot the same to be sett in tak to tennents, laborars of the ground, haklan and followand the pleucht with thair awin hands, to be haldyn immediatlie of the toune, for payment of sic mayll and dwety as the toune as thai sell condiscend and appunct thairupoun ; and na lord, laird, nor burgess to haf ony tak or intres thairto, bot onlie the laborars of the ground with thair awyne hands, as said is, conforme to the act and ordinance mayd be the haill toune thairupoun obefoir, quhilk thai var suorn and oblist to obserff, as the said act purports, of the dayt the sevint day of October, the yeir of God jm<sup>o</sup> vc xlvij yeirs. [P. 307.]

Some statutes on the subject of swyne and middings do not impress us with an exalted idea of the cleanliness of the town in former days.

That na swyne be hauldin within this burgh, vteuche band in somer seasoun for destroying of the cornis, fra the tyme the cornis be sawin quhill it be schorne and led. Also, that all swyne croiffis maid apone the forgait, under stairis, and wther plaicis, be destroyit, and cassin doune ; and that nane presuppane to mak ony sic croiffis in deformite of the King's gait in tyme to cum under the pane of viii s vnforgevin ; and that na swyn be hauldin in fyre houses on the nicht for danger of fyre, under the samen pane.

Item, that all the swyne within this toynn be removid and devidit of the toynne, or ellis haldin and kepit fast in houssis, within xlvij houris efter, vnder the pane of eschaeting of thame that beis fundin gangand one the gait thairefter, to be dispoit to the folkis in the Linkis, as the bailzeis and counsale sall think expedient.

Elikwiss, it is deuisit and ordanit that thair be oppin proclamatioun maid, &c., that all myddingis now lying on the hiegait throw all the townn, that thai be removit and put away within viii dayis helrefter : certefeing all and sindrie the inhabitantis and tennentis of the landis, quhom befor the said myddingis lye, that, an thai dycht [nocht] cleng, and mak the kingis gait woyd of the samyne, thai sall be cassin in at thair yettis and durris, and thai to fall in danger of ane vnlaw of viii s. vnforgevin, but ony fauoris.<sup>1</sup>

It is not perhaps to be wondered at, that there should be so many entries on the subject of remedies for the pest and other diseases, which must have found everything prepared for their ravages.

Item, that diligent inquisition be takin of ale infect personis with this strange seiknes of Nappillis, for the sawetie of the toun ; and the personis beand infectit therwith be chargit to keip thame in ther howsis and vther places, fra the haill folkis.

The said day, it was statut and ordanit be the alderman and consale for the eschevin of the infirmitey cumm out of Franche and strang partis, that all licht weman be chargit and ordanit to decist fra thar viciis and syne of venerie, and al thair buthis and houssis skalit, and thai to pas and wirk for thar sustentacioun, vnder the payne of ane key of het yrne one thar chekis, and banysene of the tounne.

The first notice of a doctor is in 1503, when the Town agreed to give him a yearly pension of ten merkis, on his agreing to make personal residence within the burgh "and cum and vesy tham that beis seik, and schow tham his medicin, on thar expensis."<sup>2</sup>

The following ordinances are illustrative of some ancient customs :

A statute made on the 26 May, 1525, by the command and council of ane right woirschipfull clark, Mr. John Dingwall, protinnoter apostolick, arsdiacone of Cathenes, persoun of Strathbrock, chancellor of Aberdene, and wiccar of the samen.

[P. 427.]

There are many incidental notices of political personages and events scattered throughout the volume. Among others are those relative to the government on the minority of James II.—to the Earl of Mar, brother of James III.—the death of James III.—and Perkin Warbeck.

The lists of furniture, clothing, weapons, dress, culinary instruments, and articles of merchandise, with their value in money at different periods, which are to found throughout the volume, contain much valuable information for a comparison of the state of the country at different eras. The numerous assizes of all kinds of grain, ale, wine, and provisions, are valuable for a similar reason.

On the whole, it is hoped that the selections now printed will be regarded as no inconsiderable addition to already existing materials for a history, not merely of the locality to which they more immediately relate, but of the people of Scotland.

The Editor takes this opportunity of acknowledging the courtesy of John Angus, Esq., the City Clerk, and a member of the Council of the Club, who, on all occasions, afforded a liberal and ready access to the Registers; a favour which they only who have had occasion to refer to them as frequently as the Editor had, will be able duly to appreciate.

JOHN STUART.

In vitniss of the quhilk thing I haue subscriuit this my obligatioun with my hand, in presens of the saidis lordis, at the burgh of Pertht, the xij day of December, in the yeir of God j<sup>m</sup> v<sup>c</sup> xxx yeris; and gif the remanent of the saidis lordis freindis findis sufficient sourte and lawborrowiss conforme to the deliuerance of the lordis of counsall now gevin in that behalf, the lordis dischargis the souerteis tane of thame obbefoir, and ordanis the last souerte to haif effect as said is. Extractum de libro actorum per me Gavinum episcopum Abirdonensem clericum rotulorum registre ac consilii supremi domini nostri regis sub meis signo et subscriptione manualibus.

Memorandum, the xxij day of December, this letteris of band war put in the commone kist of the tolbutht of Abirdene, at the command of the consall of the samyn.

16th April, 1531.

The said day, Sandris Gray opponit iugement to the prouist and bailzeis how he and Sandris Knolls was chosen be thame lords of Bonacord, to do plesour and blythnes to the toune in this sessoun of symmir incumming, offerand alwais reddy to the samyn effect, for his part, to do all plesour to the toune efter his guidlye powar, thai findand ane marrow sufficient furth filland his part in the samyn effect; protestand alwais, gif thai did nocht, that he wald nocht except the said office on him, nor na part tharof, for this instant year, on the quhilk he tuke note and instrument.

The prouest exponit to the communitie, present for the tyme, how he had the kings grace letteres under his signet, impetrat be thair awiss, chargand the neichbours of this burgh, that nane of thame suld refuss whatsomeuer office of honor thai happin to be chosin to the said communitie, under the panis of tinsall of all and sindry thair takkis, and rouns they had on the samyn; and inlikwiss how the prouest and counsall had chosen Alexr. Gray and Alexander Knollis to be lords of Bonacord for this instant year, quhilks has been an office of honor this tymes bygane, and inquit at the communitie gif they thocht expedient that gin ony of the saids parteis refusit the said office, that our soureigns lords lettres suld be execut on thame in the charpest maner, quhilk the said counsall and commonitie thocht expedient to be done.

16th April,

The said day, Sandris Knollis exponit to the baillies and comonite, present for the tyme, how that he was chosin by the prouest, counsall, and pairt of the commonitie, as thai allegit, to be ane of the lords of Bonacord for this instant zear, to the quhilk office he was not able, as he allegit, for diuerse caussis; ane, because he was not present at the said election; ane other, because thair were mony others mair abil for sic office in the toune, and had greater profite therof; thridly, because he had the kings lettres dischargand him of all sic thingis; nocht the less, he was yet redy to except the said office, gif the toun wald gif him the auld fee quhilk thai had wont to pay for the samyn, and other wiss nocht, protestand quhat beis done be the toune heirintill turn him to na progiteis.
